BRIEF HISTORY

RANCHO SAN MARCOS was established by the Santa Barbara Mission as an outpost. Named for Fray Marcos Amestoy of the Santa Barbara Mission, the compound included an asistencia comprising a chapel and living quarters, a granary, wine cellar, and dwellings for the Chumash Indians. In addition there was a wine press, pottery kiln, threshing corral, and livestock pens.

In 1822 Mexico declared its independence from Spain and began to secularize the missions and sell off their lands. The flag changed from Spain to Mexico and when Pio Pico became Governor of California in 1846 he actively sold off Land Grants to finance the Mexican-American War of 1846. Accordingly, on June 8, 1846, Rancho San Marcos, comprising 35,573 acres, was sold to Nicholas and Richard Den for $750 in gold.

Nicholas Den died in 1862, and Richard lost most of his cattle in the drought years from 1862-1864. Rancho improvements fell into disrepair and the land passed out of the Den family.

William Pierce, owner of the adjoining Tequepis Ranch, bought San Marcos in 1868 from the Den brother's heirs and consolidated the ranches into a single cattle operation. Pierce later sold San Marcos to F.W. Mathiessen.

In 1938 Dwight Murphy, a noted breeder of Palomino horses, acquired 7,000 acres of Rancho San Marcos from F.W. Mathiessen, whose family owned the Big Ben Clock Company. Murphy's golden-colored horses with white manes and tails were shown in the Rose Bowl Parades in Pasadena and Fiesta Parades in Santa Barbara. Palominos from Rancho San Marcos were ridden by early television actors, among them, Leo Carrillo.

Murphy also bred registered Hereford cattle and through his breeding program he introduced new high quality bloodlines to Santa Barbara County's existing commercial herds.

In 1938 when Dwight Murphy bought the Rancho San Marcos property he acquired the legal title to the name Rancho San Marcos. In 1948 he sold the majority of his ranch lands to Lewis Welch, but retained approximately 700 acres, which is the last piece of property to; in turn retain the name of the original 1846 Mexican land grant.

In 1955 Dwight Murphy retired from his breeding program and sold Rancho San Marcos to Robert S. Odell, whose Allied Properties company owned the Santa Barbara Biltmore and the Clift Hotel in San Francisco. The Odell family bred and grazed cattle, and farmed alfalfa, barley and oat hay on the ranch for over 40 years, until the Rancho San Marcos Golf Course was established.

GET 'ER DONE!

Heed the call of the hewgag and step up to help out with the fall doins. The humbug is looking for a few good clampers whose talents will fulfill the distinct and rewarding duties necessary for clampmentment for all. Those brave and willing personages should seek out and avail themselves to the Humbug or BoB.

WHAT'S THE RUB

The Rub varies with the costs of Clampsite access and proximity to services for table, chair, and toilet rentals. Your gold dust pays for stuff like: your very own Badge-of-the-Day, premium beer, jockey box, ice, big and little slippery, an exceptional multi-course gastronomic experience, firewood, bribes, signs, printing & mailing of this proclamation, insurance, the web site, and a bunch of stuff you don't really want to know about. But most importantly it is for the collective funding of an historic plaque!

CAST IRON COOKOFF

Kicking off the weekend doins is the Friday Night Cast Iron Cook-Off, judged by a select set of experienced gastronomes. The winning contender will be awarded the coveted, perpetual "Flying Pig" trophy. The award ceremony will consist of a Certificate of Merit (or probably some cash) bestowed upon the winning chef d'fer, and being photographed (only after returning the trophy to the chapter trailer for safe keeping),

All Cast iron entries must be cooked on the coals not in your clamp abode or home. All contestants should gather with the Humbug at 4 on Friday afternoon.

THE FINE PRINT

Large RVs over 28 feet are not recommended due to terrain and narrow curved road; No open flame ground fires of any kind. There is one central fire ring for Cast Iron Cook-off and disposal of ashes. No motorcycles; no orphans (2- or 4-legged); no guns, knives, explosives, or weapons of any kind; no illegal or controlled substances. The presence of prohibited items jeopardizes our chapter charter; enforcement will be by all officers of the chapter and violators will be escorted off the premises. Let a brother of sobriety take the reins.
